How Elizabeth Became Queen

"You said a mouthful, Queen," the mayor's wife was reported to have told the Queen when Her Majesty remarked that New York was an impressive city to look upon. The next day Mayor John F. ("Red Mike") Hylan denied that his wife had said that, inasmuch as she was a

That Queen also was named Elizabeth, but she bore the title only as the wife of the reigning monarch, Albert I of Belgium. They came here in 1919 to thank Americans in person for the aid extended to Belgium after its invasion and occupancy by German forces in World War

Whether or not Elizabeth of Belgium was indeed told she had said a mouthful, many Americans who see Elizabeth II of Britain on her present visit to this country will be tempted to call her quite an eyeful. So were her predecessor as reigning Queen, Victoria (1837-1901), at least in her younger years, and the first Elizabeth (1558-1603), in a hard and brittle way. But the other three reigning Queens of England -Mary I (1553-58), Mary II (jointly with William III, 1689-94) and Anne (1702-14) were never accused of being beauties.

It is hardly surprising that only six women should have sat on the throne of England in a thousand years, for accession is governed by a variation of the old Salic Law whereby a male takes precedence over a female, regardless of age. If a brother had been born to Elizabeth II only one day before GeorgeVI's death, she would have remained Princess Elizabeth. And Prince Charles would still be the Heir Apparent if he had been born after instead of before Princess

Civil Rights For Anybody

M. C. Prunty of Milwaukee has raised an issue which intrigued me. He wants civil rights for the merican Indian. Well, why not? Of course, if the arious treaties with the Indian nations were revoked and the Indians were recognized as just people, like Lithuanians or Syrians, they might sue for their ancestors' lands and that would be embarrassing to everybody. Who knows? They might win some cases in the courts and become millionaires.

Whoever conceived the idea way back of treating the American Indian as partly an enemy alien and partly a ward of the government, meanwhile robbing him of his property, must have been a smart trader, as smart as the Dutchman who got Manhattan Island for $24. Today, it is difficult to rent a room on this island for $24 a month, unfurnished and not in a slum. In fact, the place is getting so that it is divided between slums and office buildings, with hotels thrown

In all the years I have been in these parts, I only met one Indian and he was driving a taxicab. He looked like a Manchurian, so I began to speak to him in Chinese, but he had no knowledge of the subject, asked me what it was and when I told him, he said that he was an American Indian.

So we got talking about Indians and he made the point that those who got away from Reservations were like other people. He had started out as a steel construction worker, which seems to attract American Indians. He liked living in Brooklyn, was not particularly anxious to go back to the woods. In fact, he knew nothing about the woods, or woodcraft or any of that Boy Scout stuff. He had an Anglicized name and voted on Election Day.

This American Indian enjoyed full civil rights and one of his rights was the right of selectivity, of discrimination, of picking and choosing his friends. That is the essential of human rights because while all human beings are created equal and are equal in the eyes of God and the law, nevertheless it is axiomatic that some human beings like each other and some do not, and while no harm can be done no matter who dances with whom, it is quite true that there usually is some distinction, as for instance short boys do not like to dance with tall girls who make them look inferior. And some girls hate to dance with boys who sweat plentifully and leave a stain on their dresses. It takes all kinds of people to compose the human race, but one cannot be required by law to like them all. In fact, one of the most famous advertisements is about halitosis-you know, "Your best friend won't tell you"-and certainly no law can require anybody to like a person who suffers from

Well, all this is discrimination. And sometimes, those who discriminate most vehemently are those who are not too acceptable to others themselves. But no one recognizes his own faults except those who are humble and most of us are not humble but have a better opinion of ourselves than may be warranted by the facts. That generally does no harm unless it obtrudes itself on the prerogatives of others.

Few are willing to face the problems of integration. desegregation, discrimination objectively. Folks do get along well together on a traditional plane when everywing is at it was and each person knows what to do except the cad and the revolutionist. When traditions are exploded, the changes may not always be for the better. For instance, looking at history without prejudice or personal interest, one must admit that Hungary was better off under the Hapsburg monarchy than it is today; similarly the Jews of Russia, even when they were segregated in the Pale of Settlement, were better off in Russia under Czar Nicholas II who openly hated them than they have been under Stalin and Khrushchev who pretended to believe in what is erroneously called human rights, Khrushchev pronouncing Stalin to be an anti-Semite and then proving that he is one himself in an interview with Eleanor Life can be pretty tough under those who regard themselves as humanitarians. The surest proof of this is the absolute segregation of Negroes in Northern cities, such as New York, Chicago, Philadelphia etc.

Our Only Remaining Launching Platform

Mayor Wagner Stands On Dignity; Won't Meet Queen's Special Train

Wagner of New York, who would not receive King Saud of Saudi Arabia but did receive Archbishop Makarios of Cyprus, is playing it very safe with the queen of England. When the Queen's special Baltimore and Ohio train arrives in Staten Island, the Mayor will not be on hand to meet her. He will wait until she arrives at City Hall.

Quite a hullabaloo was raised when Eisenhower previously declined to meet the President of Brazil, the President of Italy, the King and Queen of Greece, and other chiefs of state when they arrived at Washington airport or Washington Union Station. He waited at the White House, In the case of King Saud, Ike made an exception and went to the airport. This was why British officials made sure that the President would put the Queen of England at least in the same category as the King of Saudi Arabia and go to meet her at the airport.

But the Mayor of New York is a law unto himself. He claims that proper protocol requires that he await the Queen at City Hall. Another mayor, born in Ireland, warmhearted Bill O'Dwyer, did not follow this policy. I recall that when I arrived in New York with the Friendship Train, Mayor O'Dwyer did not wait at City Hall, but went down to the Battery at the lower tip of Broadway to meet me and ride up Broadway in the same car.

But Mayor Wagner, whose

Western Allies Must Strengthen Their Union

By Joseph Alsop

The Kremlin's current behavior is deeply alarming over-all, but it still has one reassuring aspect. This is the Soviet leaders' extraordinarily persistent drive to open a new dialogue with the American leadership.

With some justice, the masters of the Kremlin have always held that serious negotiations were impossible at crowded conference tables. They have always treated big conferences with numerous participants as mere stages for propaganda exercises. They have always thought that real decisions could only be reached faceto-face with the United States speaking for all the West, while they speak for their own half of the divided world,

In recent weeks, the Kremlin has seized every conceivable opportunity to press for such talks. To Mrs. Roosevelt, to Aneurin Bevan, to the recent delegation of British Conservative Members of Parliament, and to anyone else who has been handy, Nikita Krushchev and his colleagues have repeatedly sung the same plaintive song.

'Why can't Zhukov have a cozy chat with Eisenhower? Why doesn't Stassen want to come to Moscow? Why won't the Americans get together with us to thrash everything out?' That is the burden of the song which is, so to speak, one face of current Soviet behavior. The other face is the menacing overconfidence of the Soviet leaders, induced by their belief that the West is now very weak and the Soviet Union is now very strong. This somewhat exaggerated but understandable belief is the direct result of the Eisenhower administration's long, complacent neglect of the world balance of

Being realistic, the Soviets regard the balance of power as the mainspring of history. Seeing the balance of power tilting in their favor, they plan and expect to make great gains in the Middle East and elsewhere. In sum, they are on the march.

The balance of power is chiefly tilting because of successful Soviet development of such weapons as intercontinental missiles and hydrogen warheads, which can literally destroy life on earth. The masters of the Kremlin clearly intend to exploit their possession of these weapons to the full, but only psychologically and politically. They certainly have no hankering to use these weapons in actual war. Hence, their desire for face-to-face talks with the American leadership, dangerous for the American government to tide over in the usual manner, with press conference statements. The ship of state cannot be floated across the worst reefs in many years by mere outpourings of phony soothing syrup. Positive, clear-headed and bold action is urgently needed in Washington.

The first and most essential thing to do, obviously, is to strike at the root of the trouble by an immediate, massive increase of the American defense effort. It is late now to start appropriating funds which should have been spent last year or the year before. Yet even at this late date, a determined attempt to restore the balance of power can be counted on to impress and sober

Alcohol Intake And Cirrhosis Of The Liver

America's firmness, America's will to survive must be decisively and promptly proven. Otherwise, the present pre-Korean atmosphere will thicken and grow worse, until the Soviet policy makers finally commit themselves to some new venture of a really fatal character.

But at this juncture, even the largest increase of our defense effort will not suffice. In order to complete the task of impressing and sobering the Kremlin, it is also urgent to restore the vanished unity of the Western Alliance. The most rock-like Western unity is now politically vital. It is also vital in a purely practical sense. For the strategic striking power of the United States still almost fully depends on overseas bases belonging, not to us, but to our allies.

When the causes of Western disunity are examined, they are seen to range all the way from the sour after-taste of Suez to the tight American grasp on almost the entire Western supply of the absolute weapons, All sorts of specific corrective measures are needed. Some of these measures will not be easy, such as the very badly needed amendment of the McMahon act to provide NATO with its own nuclear stockpile and to allow closer scientific collaboration with our allies.

Yet even such important corrective measures will not wholly suffice either. The biggest worm in the core of the Western apple is simply the other Western nations' almost total loss of faith in the wisdom, courage, foresight and disinterestedness of the present American leadership. Unless this condition can also be corrected, all other efforts and investments may well go for nothing. But this is a separate subject needing to be examined in a subsequent report.

Chronic poisoning from exposure to carbon tetrachloride or phosphorus may lead to cirrhosis of the liver. In the orient, malaria and bowel infections are the most common causes. The problem of getting news out of the White House is becoming more and more difficult. White House correspondents recently made a formal protest against the brushoff given them by new Secretary of Defense Neil McElroy. He was a lot different from garrulous Charlie Wilson, his predecessor.

About ten days before the arrival of Queen Elizabeth, the UP's Merriman Smith, dean of White House correspondents, had a showdown with White House press secretary Jim Hagerty. Smith had made repeated queries on various questions, was unable to get answers. Finally he said:

"Up in Newport we couldn't get anything from the President because he was on his vacation. Now the excuse is that he's busy getting ready for Queen Eliza-

News still continues tight around the White House. Big Oil vs. Little Oil

In the days when trust-busting Thurman Arnold was keeping an eagle eye on big business as head of the Justice Department's Antitrust Division, he brought a historic suit against the big oil companies for getting kickbacks from the oil pipelines they owned. With the oil moguls paying less to pump their oil through their subsidiary pipelines, the independent oil companies were out of luck. They couldn't compete. Arnold won his case and got a consent decree limtiing the oil companies to a seven-per cent profit on their pipelines.

But like many consent decrees in antitrust cases, it has been flagrantly flouted. The oil companies thumbed their nose at the court and Atorney General Brownothing about it.

Finally, Congressman Mannie Celler of New York announced an investigation. Three weeks after his announcement, the Justice Department figured that it might be shown up in a bad light. So it got busy, filed suit against Standard Oil of Indiana, owner of the Service Pipe Line Company; owner of Tidal Pipe Line Company; Arapahoe Pipe Line Company, owned by Sinclair Refining Company and Pure Oil: and the Texas Pipe Line Company, owned by the Texas Company,

One Man's Sacrifice

Some people claim Washington is a stony-hearted city, full of bureaucrats, retired Army-Navy officers, defeated politicians who think more about the places they come from than the city in which they now live. Maybe it used to be that way. I don't know.

But I do know that the other day I was sitting with a man who was busier than the proverbial one-armed paper-hanger, but took time out to do all sorts of things for his community. He was never too busy to handle the drive for Christmas Seals, or the Red Cross, or the campaign to aid crippled children, though he was the head of the Hecht Company and three big department

I was with Harry Davidow that day, planning a campaign to aid juvenile delinquency through the Big Brothers. With us was Herbert Goodman of Remington-Rand, another busy man who can always find time to help others.

We worked for more than an hour. Outside Davidow's office other people were waiting. We left. Shortly after we left Harry Davidow suffered a stroke, never rallied. He died giving himself to his community.

Harry Davidow was a Jew. Herb Goodman, who is heading the Big Brothers funds drive, is a Catholic. This fact was accidental. But I like to think of that cooperation and Harry Davidow's sacrifce as the kind that makes this country great, and proves that Washington, D. C., is not the stony-hearted city people sometimes say it is.

heraldry, the pomp of power . . . awaits alike the inevitable hour" -these lines of Thomas Gray in his famous Elegy came to mind as the nation's capital welcomed the Queen of the British Commonwealth. For, however much the ceremonies and celebrations here are a dramatic tribute to the steadfastness of Anglo-American relations, the fact remains that these are symbols of yester-

Even as the Queen was saluting the colonial heritage of our country at Jamestown, Virginia, the Secretary of State of the United States was issuing a warning to the rulers of the Soviet Union that, if Turkey is attacked, there will be retaliation by American military forces.

Mr. Dulles likened the situation to the period just before the Korean war broke out in 1950. But just before that event there were no such warnings. Instead, there was an ill-advised declaration that America considered Korea as outside the "defense perimeter" of the United States.

Maybe the stern words of Secretary Dulles are necessary to prevent a local war into which the rest of the world subsequently might be drawn.

Maybe the cynical attitude of some observers here that Mr. Dulles is bluffing and is engaging in a game of what they call "brinkmanship" can encourage miscalculation by Moscow, just as the Nazis miscalculated when they assumed in 1939 that America would never enter the war. Maybe also the Soviet Union is just bold enough to follow up the recent dispatch of Egyptian troops to Syria with a manuever which will turn the Arab world against Israel and start a fresh blaze in the Middle East.

This is the realism that confronts the world as the Queen's visit affords a good opportunity to cement America's relations with Britain, which were impaired during the Suez crisis of a

WASHINGTON-"The boast of or the portent of the Russian

The hurt pride may be assuaged in the coming months as American scientists launch a satellite of their own. But the fear of the Soviet rulers and what they may capriciously do to disturb world peace will remain. Secretary Dulles showed himself to be very courageous when he lashed out at the Soviet rulers in his press conference Wednesday. Declaring that they quibble and equivocate and do not keep their agreements, he doubted that anything might be accomplished by more meetings "at the summit or between Marshal Zhukov and President Eisenhower. He seemed to discourage any idea that something constructive now could come out of disarmament taiks or from such four-hour conferences as he had with Foreign Minister Gromyko last Saturday. It's a bleak prospect for tomorrow's world - a continuance of the tension that has prevailed for several years and a virtual certainty now that tax reduction for the American taxpaver will be abandoned as more and more billions have to be spent for arm-

For the United States has not been bluffed into submission and surrender, though, to be sure, since the "Sputnik" episode, it is discouraging to note that the cries for "peaceful co-existence" seem to be finding more favor with certain sections of American opinion which have always wanted to do business with the Communists.

The cold truth is that the world has cause for anxiety and worry. The Queen's visit is helpful because it brings two friendly pe ples closer together. But it is the alliance and combination of the technical, the scientific, the miliary and the moral forces of the entire free world which now must be consummated if an effective "balance of power" to keep the peace is to be achieved.

Statesmanship - which doesn't mean narrow partisanship in foreign affairs such as so many of the self-styled spokesmen on the Democratic side are exhibiting-is an acute need. Maybe it is a time for a coalition conference of the sensible leaders of both parties to be summoned by the President to take the missile controversy out of polices and to forge inside America a new unity in international affairs. That's a pressing requirement for survival in tomorrow's world.
